Places in The Heart (1984)

In this movie, Sally Field won her second Best Actress Oscar as a young widow living in the Depression-era south. She's determined to grow a cotton crop to keep her family together. The movie starts out with a tragedy, and ends filled with promise and hope. The "Little Country Posey" collection by Kim Schaefer for Andover Fabrics has such joyful bright colors and whimsical prints that it reminds us of our grandmothers' gardens and out country roots. I can just see a line of flower pots filled with little posies nodding in the sun, lined up on a cottage porch railing. Ahh.
